Le projet de ce cours est de cerner les différents courants catéchétiques (leurs caractéristiques, leurs enjeux, leurs limites, etc.) depuis les années 1950 jusqu'à nos jours.	Augustine (354–430 CE) was the most prominent Church Father who wrote in Latin and his works profoundly influenced medieval thought. Encountering him through his writings is an exciting, rewarding and challenging journey for every student of Christianity. This course approaches his legacy from a variety of perspectives through selections from his works, particularly The Confessions, The City of God, On Christian Doctrine and On the Trinity.

Brief description of the Course (Course Goals and Objectives)	The aim of the course is to present the ethical dimension of human enhancement.	The aim of the course is to present selected issues in phenomenology. The aim of this course is a presentation of the main problems connected to Martin Heidegger's philosophy, particularly that of existence in regard to the human being and human life. Heidegger is arguably one of the most important philosophers of the 20th century, one who brought the problem of man and his existence to a new way. Heidegger showed the complexity of human life, he showed that man lives "non-authentically" escaping before the most important existential problems, building the artificial structure of	This course provides an overview of the topics and discussions in the field of science and religion. It has been designed to facilitate a comprehensive overview of contemporary issues that lie on the border between theology and the natural sciences. It studies historical and contemporary interactions between science and religion, providing philosophical analyses of how
